BREED THEATER.

"The Fighting Dervishes of the Des-ert," the feature picture at the Breed today, is one of the most astounding motion pictures of the year, Here is a thrilling drama, played all by Amer-can actors, in the Rible town of The-bes, Egypt, on the identical spots famces, Egypt, on the identical spots fam-ous in ancient history. Here again are the ruins of a temple built 200 years before the days of Moses. In this tem-ple occurs some of the most important and picturesque of scenes, and this scene is only one of many that hold the attention of the audiences, for also to be seen is the ancient water wheel, a consume Arab encamment and vila genuine Arab encampment and vil-lage, the fanatical dervishes with their camels, a true presentation of a Coptic religious service—one of the carrist and most primitive forms of the carrist anity—and many others, all claused interest. The great scenes taken on the Sabara Desert are bewildering and novel in the extreme.

"Their Golden Anniversary," one of the peerless Vitagraph Life Portrayals is a veritable motion picture gem, and saws the big audiences by its de-lightful home story.

AT THE AUDITORIUM.

Today will be the last chance to hear the Four Harmony Boys in their attractive singing specialty, and it will also be the last chance to see the attractive new motion picture service heat, set range and plenty of closet which has just been secured by this room, centrally located and suitable house, as the management has decided to close the house tonight for a period of three weeks, in order to make some needed repairs and to thoroughly clean and retaint the interior.

FORTY DAYS OF DROUTH.

St. Swithin's Day Passed Without Rain -But Don't Worry About Old Tra-

St. Swithin's day was Monday and it came and went without rain. There-fore, if the old tradition still holds true, there will be forty days of drouth. For according to the legend, St. Swithin was bishop of Winchester and lord chancellor under King Affred of Merrie England. Just before he died, in $43, he begged his monks to bury him not in the accustomed tomo of bishops, the chancel of the church, but outside the walls. He insisted that he was too lowly a person to deaserve the distinction, and his wishes were obeyed. His buriel place in the ware the distinction, and his wishes ware obeyed. His burial place in the churchyard was the scene of so many miracles in the century that followed that the monks of the time thought to fignify the interior of the church with the bones of the pious man, and on fully 15, 862, the body was removed to the chancel. A missiy rainstorm hat lasted forty dars marked the svent, and the monks, thinking that the heavens were angry because the wishes of the bishop were not followed, built a chapel over the body to honor the departed saint. Later the cathedral at Winchester was rededicated to Bishop Swithin, but in the times of Henry VIII., it was changed to Holy Trinity cathedral.

Frinity cathedral.
History, bowever, says that there was no rainsform on the day of the removal of the bones, and the church historians of the times affirm that the saint's friends in heaven welcomed

The legend was well known in England in the Elizabethan era, Ben Jonson in his comedy of "Every Man Jonson in his comedy of "Every Man in His Humour," has one of his characters, Sordido, a miser and cynic, criticize an almanac thus: "Sild! Stay! This is worse and worse. What says he of St. Swithin's Turn back, look, St. Swithin's the fifteenth day, weather for the most part rain, good. For the most part rain? Why, it should rain forty days after now, more or less. It was a rule held afore I was able to hold a plow, and yet here are two days no rain. Ha! It makes me

It is said that a credulous investigator in the nineteenth century de-siroyed a lot of belief in the legend by examining the rainfall at Greenwich for twenty consecutive years, He said there never were forty con-secutive wet or dry days following St. Swithin's day, and that the greater part were rainy when St. Swithin's day was dry.

Oh, write no more the tale of Tray,
If earth Death's scroll must be;
Nor mix with Laien rage the joy

Although a subtler Sphinz recow
Riddles of death Thebes never knew.

Another Athens shall story,
And to remoter time
Bequeath, like sunset to the arles,
The spiendor of its prime;
And leave, if naught so bright maj

Saturn and Love their long repose
Shall burst, more bright and good
Than all who fell, than One who rose,
Than many unsubdued;
Not gold, not blood, their altar dowers,
But votive teers and symbol flowers.

Oh, cease! must hate and death return?
Cease! must men kill and die?
Cease! drain not to its dregs the syn
Of bitter proineey.
The world is weary of the past,
Oh, might it die or rest at last!
